Tonight: Sunset strings at San Jacinto Plaza, 6:30 PM, free

1. Top bar, 1100px and wider: name hard left, five links centered, tools and Post hard right. Narrower, the links fold into a Menu (Phone page).

2. Hero: a film of El Paso at dusk, scrubbed by the scroll. The title holds while the sky changes. Reduced motion shows a still.

Sunset strings at San Jacinto Plaza

Two hours of strings on the plaza as the sun goes down, with the fountain lit.

What changed: shown only when the organizer moved or called it off, with the date of the change.

Who it is for

All ages. Bring a blanket; the lawn fills by six.

What it costs

Free

Know before you go

Parking: the Mills Avenue garage, $5 after 5.
Bring a blanket or a low chair.
Rain moves it to the Plaza Theatre lobby.

Where

San Jacinto Plaza, Mills Ave at Oregon St, Downtown. Enter from Oregon Street.

The organizer

Sun City Sound Collective, @suncitysound. Confirmed with the organizer today.

Similar this week

- Chuco record fair — Tomorrow, 11 AM
- Jazz on the theatre steps — Thursday, 7 PM
- Porch concert in Sunset Heights — Saturday, 6 PM

1. The flyer is the listing's picture, the same one the rows and the grid show.

2. The pinned card: status, date, time, venue, price, three actions. Save adds to Saved and the bar's count; Send copies a share line; Add downloads an .ics file.

3. A moved or canceled event keeps its page with a dated note; Save and Add are disabled when canceled.

Toast at the bottom of the screen after Send the plan

1. Saved lives in the browser; the top bar's count follows it. The rows are the calendar's own, grouped by day, and a moved event keeps its dated status.

2. Send the plan copies one text block, one line per event, for the group chat; on a phone it opens the share sheet. A toast confirms. Clear empties the plan.

Post it once. It stays yours.

Your page is the source. GPI lists what you post, links back to you, and shows the date it was last confirmed. Change the place or call it off, and the listing says so the same hour.

Post an event

Six things every listing needs.

They are the six things people leave a listing to find, which the field week heard four times out of four.

Who it is for

Ages, who should come, who should not. The workshop that did not say so lost its reader to another page.

What it costs

Free is a real answer, and a filter people use.

Where, exactly

Address, entrance, parking. The twenty minutes people spend checking are the listing's job.

Your page

The link people check anyway. The listing points at it instead of pretending to replace it.

Still on

Confirmed, changed or canceled, dated. The flyer that outlived its correction sent two friends to the wrong lot.

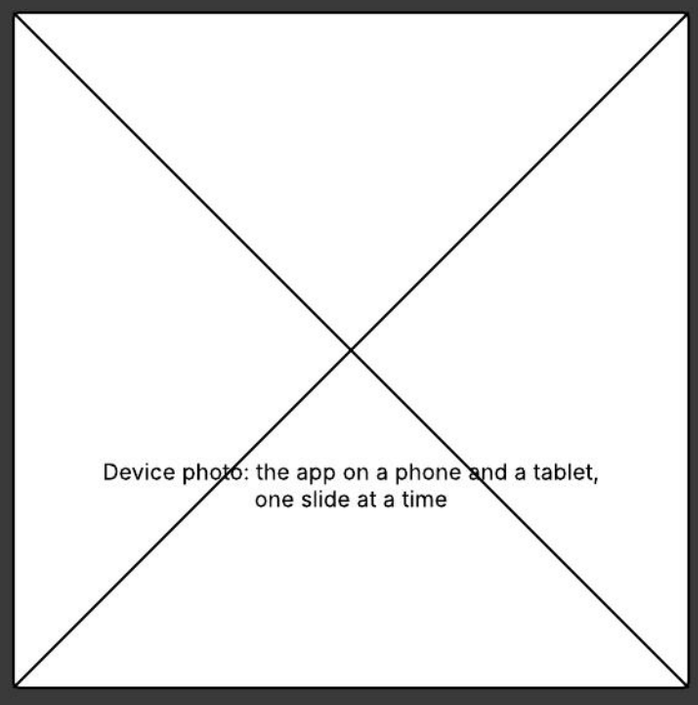

One listing

Edited by you, not reposted by others, so the correction travels with the event.

What a listing looks like.

Everything on tonight, by time, in your hand.

Tonight | Saved | An event | The week

Post an event Listed within a day, confirmed against your page.

1. The pitch: the organizer's own page stays the source. GPI lists what is posted, links back, and dates the last confirmation.

2. The six fields are the Post form's six required things, in the order the field week ranked them.

3. What a listing looks like: the device photos re-dressed with the site's screens, each slide fading into the next every 6.5 seconds; the chips pick a slide and the caption says what it shows. Pause motion stops the show.
